Our Green Plants are produced from our finest clumps selected in the field for propagating. We use base cuttings only and root them by electric heat. We grow them cool, which assures stocky plants; they are hardened off before shipping and the many letters of appreciation we have received prove that with the proper care they will produce as good clumps and usually far better blooms than roots and yet the price is only one-third to one-half the price of roots. Our own planting for several years has been at least 75 per cent plants.

BUT REMEMBER THIS

There's a big difference in plants, so place your order with a grower who you know has the knowledge and proper stock and equipment to produce the highest grade plants.

Gentlemen:

I received the shipment of dahlia bulbs which I ordered some time ago and want to congratulate you on the splendid manner in which they were packed and the excellent condition of the tubers. They certainly are the most vigorous and healthy looking tubers I have ever seen.

Dear Mr. Zant:

I received the Rooted Cuttings alright, and they were in fine shape. They are doing fine in the hot bed and I am sure I'll have no trouble in growing them. Thanks for the fine extra, it's one I wanted.

Dear Sir:

The shipment of green dahlia plants which I received from you last spring, grew into sturdy bushes which gave us lots of blooms and made strong clumps. Everyone that sees my Dahlias exclaims over their sturdiness.

Will you please mail me your catalog. The greatest dahlias I have ever seen were grown from tubers ordered from your catalog last spring.

The Dahlia roots that you sent me last April have grown beautifully and I have the largest flowers that have ever been seen in this country. Evidently conditions here are very suitable for Dahlia culture. Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Zant:

I think it is only in order now that the season is practically over, that I should report to you the success we have had with our dahlias this fall. We are overjoyed with the results that we got and never, within the writer's remembrance, has he grown dahlias the size of your bulbs. They could have been on exhibition anywhere and we have had plenty of cars stop at the summer place to look them over. Naturally they had pretty good attention. They were fed every three weeks with Vigoro and I am sure that it all paid.

With kindest regards, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

J. U. B.
